PROJECT PHULWARI

Project PHULWARI is an Initiative of Humanity Welfare Council in the field of child care and development. Anganwadi centres are very popular among local people and if properly utilised can help in resolving many issues among children.

Project PHULWARI recognises these Anganwadi Centres (AWCs) as the most important unit in society development. We aim to act as the backbone of such centres by providing them assistance in meeting their targets and thus making the ICDS programme and the efforts of the Indian Government successful.

Project PHULWARI lays emphasis on holistic development of children. The focus is on children from age group 0 years-5 years which is a period of physical and mental growth. This project is specially designed to reach disadvantaged and low income groups. The project is aimed to break an intergenerational cycle of under nutrition which leads to lower cognitive development, which results in lower learning capacities.

A study found that Anganwadi's running under ICDS programme is not particularly effective in reducing malnutrition, largely because of implementation problems. Humanity Welfare Council is trying to fulfil this gap. Legislative policy, plan and programme commitments including a range of national programmes to improve early child development outcomes remain a real challenge.

Objectives of Project PHULWARI

- To give ground report of Anganwadi Centers to government and help the governing bodies in proper implementation of schemes.
- To bridge the gap between people and the government body.
- To educate the people about the government facilities. So, that the initiatives of government can be made successful.
- To improve the nutritional and health status of children at such anganwadi centers.
- To increase the co-operative module in order to reduce financial burden on the government and thus reducing corruption.
- To increase the popularity of Anganwadi Centers among local people and bring more children under such schemes.
- Proper psychological, physical and social development of the children.
- To provide a healthy, safe and secure environment for the children.
- Enhance the capability of the mother to look after the normal health and nutritional needs of child, through proper health and nutrition education.
- To support Anganwari centers by providing them with certain necessary items.
- To help in improving the health of pregnant and feeding mothers.
- To help in reducing the infant mortality rate and malnutrition.

Vision of Project PHULWARI
